Volume #49

The purpose of education is to fit us for life in a civilised community, and it seems to follow from the subjects we study that the two most important things in civilised life are

- Art and Science.

IIT MADRAS TO NOW OFFER A COURSE ON BIOMIMICRY

IIT Madras will soon offer a new course on Biomimicry, an intersection of biology and engineering. According to the official statement, an individual need not be a biologist or an engineer to learn biomimicry, all you a person needs is curiosity. The course would be a full semester, elective course and would teach students to imitate nature as a source of inspiration to solve complex problems. IIT officials have informed that students can have multiple applications from one organism, and there are millions of such organisms that have evolved strategies over billions of years of adaptation to our planet. These can be used as blueprints and recipes from nature to design and build solutions for our world. IIT-Madras claims to be among the first institutions in India to offer a full-fledged course on biomimicry. IIT-Madras has also claims to have created a community of biomimicry enthusiasts who are exploring opportunities in research, entrepreneurship, new products, processes, and systems.. Source: The Indian Express

ONLINE EDUCATION SPACE TO WITNESS NEW CONTENDERS - KLAY PRESCHOOL

KLAY (Kids Learning And You) Preschool and Day Care has launched Learn@Home - an advanced, interactive learning solution that brings the classroom experience to home, for children between 2 - 6 years. Built-in association with an international platform and aligned to the KLAY curriculum, Learn@Home, offers a blended learning model with the right mix of online learning and offline activities to keep the learning on even when schools are shut down owing to the COVID-19 pandemic. Powered by KLAY, the learning philosophy is based on 7 multiple intelligence-s and 5 skills because different children learn differently and through experiences in and around one's learning space. The program includes physical activity, math, language, sessions on general awareness, music, art & craft, storytelling etc. The duration of the session per day for toddlers is 1 hour and for preschoolers (Pre K, K1, K2) - 1.5 - 2 hours. Source: BW Education

GOOGLE ANNOUNCES NEW TOOLS FOR VIRTUAL LEARNING

Google announced on Tuesday a number of new features on the way to help make virtual education easier, including updates to its Google Meet conferencing service. For Meet, Google says that a larger tiled view that can show up to 49 meeting participants, which Google first announced in June, will now arrive in September. Google first launched its tiled view for Meet in April. Google will integrate its digital whiteboard product, Jamboard, into Meet in September as well, and in October, Google will add the ability to blur or replace your background in Meet. Google is also announcing when it will roll out new moderation controls. Moderators will be able to stop people from joining meetings after they've been kicked from the room or denied from entering two times, which will help prevent people from nefariously disrupting classes. Source: The Verge
